

Landspítali - The National University Hospital of Iceland

NEPHROLOGIST IN ICELAND

Do you want to join us?

Landspítali -The National University Hospital of Iceland is recruiting an experienced Nephrologist or a well trained recent graduate within the Department of Medicine, Division of Nephrology. This is a full time position with primarily clinical responsibilities. The successful applicant will care for patients with acute and chronic kidney disease, patients on chronic hemodialysis, peritoneal dialysis as well as continuous dialysis procedures in the ICU. The candidate will also care for kidney transplant recipients on both inpatient and outpatient services and will participate in the education of medical students and residents.

Qualifications

Applicants must have basic medical qualifications and specialty medical training within the field specified above. The EU Directive 2005/36/EC is the legislation regulating the mutual recognition of professional qualifications by member states of the EEA/EU. For applicants outside the European Union, medical qualifications and licenses to practice are individually assessed for compatibility by the Icelandic Directorate of Health. Applicants must speak fluent English and/or speak a Scandinavian language.

The position is available immediately, but starting date is negotiable. We may fill more than one position, depending on the number and level of qualified applicants.

Applicants should submit their application by e-mail to job@landspitali.is. Submissions should include confirmed diploma transcripts, a confirmation by a previous employer regarding previous work as a specialist, a full CV and a list of contacts for references and other relevant information. We will review applications as they arrive.

Informal communication and discussions are encouraged, and interested candidates are encouraged to contact: Margrét Birna Andrésdóttir, Head of Nephrology- via e-mail: mband@landspitali.is and/or Sigurbjörg Magnúsdóttir HR specialist via e-mail: sigurmag@landspitali.is for further information. Application deadline is October. 31st 2017 and applicants should submit their application by email to: job@landspitali.is

The hospital offers a competitive salary and numerous collectively negotiated benefits, including training and development support, including international travel and Per Diem. Relocation assistance is offered, including housing assistance and assistance with adjustment to Icelandic society. The hospital is engaged in a lean management program with emphasis on patient service, staff and patient safety, as well as staff development and continuous improvement.

Iceland is a highly developed society, with high life expectancy, education and income levels. The country ranks 16th in the United Nations Development Program Human Development Index (HDI) released in 2015 and 4th in the Social Progress Index of the Social Progress Imperative (2015). Reykjavik is a vibrant city

The National Hospital of Iceland is a University Hospital providing service to patients, teaching and training for clinical staff and engaging in scientific research. The hospital offers diverse clinical services in outpatient clinics, inpatient wards and clinical laboratories. The hospital's support services provide a range of services related to human resources, finance and economics, information technology and operations. At the hospital there is an Employees' Association that organises various events and trips for employees as well as renting out cottages and apartments in various locations around Iceland. The hospital encourages a healthy lifestyle among staff, by supporting exercise on-site, and offering a healthy selection in canteens, as well as supporting sustainable and healthy commuting options.